

The Samson Windmill

Its Uses and Economy

The windmill is now recognized as one of the most important machines used on the ranch. A farmer can as well afford to dispense with the use of his Mower, or binder, and cut his grass in the old way, as to pump water by hand. The loss of time is saved by using machinery instead of hand labor. When water is to be pumped for stock or domestic use, not only can a great deal of time be saved by the use of a windmill, but a much better service is obtained. It is everywhere recognized that stock of all kinds does better when furnished with well water, than with water from ponds and pools which are often stagnant. The windmill is untiring, and will maintain a plentiful supply of wholesome water pumped from a well or spring into a tank which may be of easy access at all times of the day or night. When water is pumped by hand the task very often falls to the lot of boys or hired men, with the result that your stock does not get the necessary amount of water. The windmill gives better returns for the investment than any other machinery used on the farm. It works the year round and saves an immense amount of labor, time and patience. The expense of operation is small after properly installed, and requires no more attention than to throw it in and out of gear. It takes no fuel and requires no engineer. Its motive power is the wind, which is free to all who care to utilize it. Talk this over with us. We have the Samson windmills in any size desired, with steel towers in any height you require.
